What would The Great Deportation look like on social media today?

If The Great Deportation happened today, it would be all over the news and social media, much like the issue with immigration in Canada and the United States. Many people would turn to social media to develop their understanding of the issue and voice their opinion. Every politician from Donald Trump to Justin Trudeau would be tweeting. Lebron James, Johnny Gaudreau, Cardi B, Ellen DeGeneres - everyone, whether they were famous or not famous would be posting their opinions and re-tweeting links.

We are going to explore this event as if it was occuring in modern times. Each of you will be assigned a group affected by, or someone who has a stake in The Great Deportation.

　　a)　The Acadians
　　b)　The British
　　c)　The French
　　d)　New France
　　e)　Thirteen colonies

You will also be assigned a role or character with specific job (some of you may be assigned a special role within a role):

　　a)　The media
　　b)　Citizen
　　c)　Politician
　　d)　Celebrity

Your job is to create one Instagram post - a drawing that depicts your character's point of view - and 3 or 4 tweets that also show your character's point of view. Your instagram post needs a little write up and a hashtag. Groups with similar views should adopt the same hashtag so it can go viral. Your tweets are the twitter limit of 280 characters. You can tweet @ people if you want. You may add "Links" to articles if you wish.
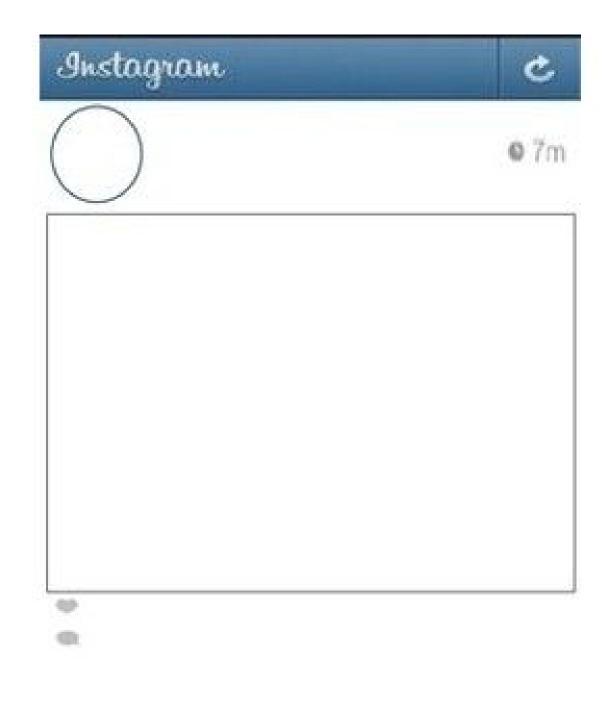

Generally speaking the points of view are:
Acadians: French and British are fighting the 7 Years War and they want to remain neutral and just keep farming their land.
France, New France: Fighting the British, in competition with the British, dislike (Hate?) the British Britain: Britain does not like the French, in competition with the French, want to take over New France
Thirteen Colonies: Don't want French culture and religion coming to their land.
